What is the overarching theme? Apportionment: Pursuant to the JSCP, apportioned forces are types of combat and related support forces provided to combatant commanders as a starting point for planning purposes.

The working definition for conventional warfare provides an appropriate test. Classification markings would be included within the parentheses. Only the President and the SecDef have the authority to approve and direct the initiation of military operations. Extensive use of JP Joint Operation Planning, 26 Dec 06, will be used in the following sections to describe joint operation planning.

It is important to understand the joint operational planning process and how is the responsibility of the President and the SecDef to establish the rules for and integration of military power with the other instruments of national power.
